EDUCATIONAL INNOVATION AND PROGRAM DEVERLOPMENT

Critical Thinking Curriculum and Case Presentation Framework (2023–Present)
Developed a structured case presentation model and assessment rubric designed to promote critical thinking and clinical reasoning among Doctor of Audiology students. Educational materials were disseminated nationally through presentations at the American Academy of Audiology and have been shared with faculty members from other institutions seeking to implement similar instructional approaches.

Clinical Supervision and Student-Clinician Experience Improvement Initiative (2024–Present)
Co-developed a program evaluation and improvement initiative examining factors that influence student and preceptor experiences in audiology clinical education. Findings have informed development of resources and recommendations to enhance clinical supervision and training outcomes across audiology programs.

Interprofessional Education Integration Initiatives (2024–Present)
Developed and implemented collaborative educational experiences with Occupational Therapy and other health professions programs focused on fall prevention, mobility assistance, communication strategies for older adults, and interprofessional practice competencies. These initiatives have expanded opportunities for experiential learning and interdisciplinary collaboration among health professions students.

CLINICAL PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT AND INNOVATION

Vestibular Program Expansion and Advanced Clinical Training (2018–Present)
Expanded specialized vestibular services at LSU Health New Orleans and University Medical Center through the development of referral relationships with otolaryngology, neurology, trauma services, and regional medical specialists, establishing LSU Audiology as a regional referral resource for complex vestibular assessment and management. Developed an advanced clinical training environment providing Doctor of Audiology students with supervised experience in videonystagmography, video head impulse testing, vestibular evoked myogenic potentials, rotary chair testing, posturography, and multidisciplinary vestibular care. These efforts expanded access to specialized services while strengthening student training and clinical competencies.

Inner Ear Decompression Sickness (IEDCS) Assessment and Monitoring Program (2026–Present)
Developed and implemented a multidisciplinary audiologic and vestibular assessment and monitoring protocol for patients with inner ear decompression sickness (IEDCS) in collaboration with the LSU Undersea and Hyperbaric Medicine Fellowship and LSU Spirit of Charity Emergency Medicine Residency Program. Established a formalized referral pathway for diver patients requiring comprehensive audiologic and vestibular evaluation and serves as the audiology lead for longitudinal outcome monitoring and recovery assessment.

Pediatric Vestibular Referral Network Development (2025–Present)
Expanded access to specialized vestibular services through development of referral relationships and collaborative care pathways with pediatric otolaryngology and other pediatric specialty providers. Increased opportunities for student training in pediatric vestibular assessment and management while improving regional access to specialty vestibular care.

Emerging Mental Health Screening and Referral Initiative for Audiology Practice (2025–Present)
Collaborating with interdisciplinary partners to develop procedures and educational resources supporting integration of mental health screening and referral practices into audiology settings. The initiative seeks to improve identification and referral of patients experiencing psychological distress associated with hearing and vestibular disorders.
